The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Hull Out For New Policy To Handle Warlike Europe

WASHINGTON—As soon as the Cuban situation quiets, Secretary Hull is planning a long and confidential talk with F. D. R. over major American foreign policy—especially Europe.

What Hull and Roosevelt face is a Europe more torn with suspicion and war preparation than at any time since the Armistice.

The most significant thing is the fact that the French Socialists, once crusaders for peace, now have thrown in their lot—a majority of them—with the French militarists. They think France has more to gain by an aggressive military policy than merely keeping armed strength at the present level.

Confidential sources received by Hull's advisers also show that the French peasant, for years immovable when it came to fear of war threats, is now apprehensive.

The key to this is an aggressive Germany. Hitler, the French think, will have to act drastically to save his prestige. The economic condition in Germany today is worse than before. Hitler had promised a millennium. So, the French think, he will have to act drastically. An offensive abroad will distract public attention from trouble at home.

That is why no one on the inside—despite optimistic announcements—expects an iota of accomplishment from the Disarmament Conference Norman Davis is attending.

The Old Bus

For four years Larry Richey, confidential secretary of Herbert Hoover, occupied an expansive office in the White House. He was in it almost every day, including many Sundays. He was also one of the most familiar callers in the residential section of the White House; almost as much a figure as Mr. Hoover. Since March 4 things changed.

But the other day Richey was standing on Sixteenth Street waiting for a taxi. Suddenly he heard a honk-honk. Looking around he saw Steve Early, one of the White House secretaries who has taken Richey's place. Early was driving the White House car which Richey had used for four years.

"Jump in Larry," yelled Early, "and take a ride in your old car."

"And that," says the ex-secretary of Herbert Hoover, "is the nearest I've been to White House property since March 4."

Big Business

It is no secret that Big Business is bucking the labor provisions of the NRA codes. But the extent to which it has worked out secret plans for sabotage has just come to General Johnson.

What Big Business plans to fight, tooth-and-nail, is Labor's militant drive to unionize the Nation under the spreading wings of the Blue Eagle. Such unionization was contemplated by Congress. It was specifically provided for in the bill creating the NRA.

But just the same Big Business opposes it, and its secret plan of attack was formulated at the recent Chicago meeting of the National Manufacturers' Association with allied organizations.

The first move was a behind-the-scenes attempt to apply pressure of the Administration. A committee of six leading open-shop manufacturers went to Washington, made a personal protest against the Administration's pro-labor leanings.

The delegation had two secret meetings with General Johnson and Secretary Ickes—head of the

Board Requests County Schools "Buy at Home"

All Purchases Possible Should be Made in Home Communities in View of Economic Conditions, County Group Urges; Economy Also to Be Watched

Following its edict last fall that economy should be the keynote in all high school functions, including commencement exercises, the county board of education, today, was on record advocating that purchases for schools should be made locally as much as possible.

This includes purchases of jewels, such as class-pins and rings; photographs of classes, individual students or athletic teams, and anything else that it bought.

It was the opinion of the board that considering economic conditions as much should be purchased at home as possible, and also as economically as possible.

HOOVER, WILLIS, DUNKLE JOIN IN RACE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Trio on Same Petition Filed With Election Board; Meyers, Barch, Brown and Spangler Are Other Four Candidates; Superintendent's Job Is Question.

One of the warmest Pickaway-co board of education fights in recent years was moving underway today with the climax to come in the election on Nov. 7.

The re-election of D. L. Buchanan as superintendent of county schools next August, when his term expires, is apparently at stake.

Seven candidates have filed with three to be elected. Terms of Wayne Hoover, Jackson-twp.; C. E. Meyers, Washington-twp., and W. H. Barch, Harrison-twp., expire and all three are seeking re-election but are on different sides of the fence.

Mr. Hoover, president of the board, has lined up with James F. Willis of Atlanta, and A. J. 'Jake' Dunkle of Walnut-twp. Names of all three of these men were in the same petition filed with Harry E. Weill, clerk of the board of elections.

On the other side are Mr. Meyers and Mr. Barch, Wayne Brown of Madison-twp. and W. I. Spangler of Tarlton.

Willis and Dunkle are new in the county board contest. Both have had experience in school matters, however, the former having served on several Perry-twp boards and as clerk, the latter was a school teacher and a member of the county board of examiners. Mr. Hoover is a board of education veteran. He was a member of the board which elected Mr. Buchanan, and although he voted for the school man, he did not cast his ballot for the length of the term which he thought was one year longer than it should have been.

Mr. Meyers and Mr. Barch were also members of the board which elected Mr. Buchanan, both voting for the term which he is now serving. Charles C. Heffner was president of the board at that time and joined with Meyers and Barch in

J. Rinehart, and the John Ucker farm in Walnut-twp.

The last of the educational wheat meetings was held at Walnut-twp Monday evening with 135 persons present. Seventeen meetings have been held with an attendance of 1,510 persons. Pickaway-twp led in attendance with 160 present with Scioto-twp second with 150. Walnut-twp was third.

Spurred by vivid memories of the grave food shortage which preceded the downfall of former President Gerardo Machado, agriscrats and priests threw class distinction to the winds and converged on the market places, avidly buying up whatever supplies are available.

"We can only do the best we can," said Mrs. Mario G. Menocal, auburn-haired wife of the former president's son. "We can be thankful for having plenty of rice and beans—they will hold us if widespread strikes or Civil War occur."

Additional cases of the dread disease brought the total close to the 700 mark. Five deaths occurred in the 24 hours ending at midnight.

In an effort to check the disease Dr. W. T. Harrison, public health service expert, outlined the disease symptoms in a radio broadcast and warned persons to go to a physician immediately if the drowsiness that precedes encephalitis appears.

M. E. MINISTER TO BE NAMED

Successor to Rev. Eichinger To Be Selected at Ohio Conference.

A successor to the late Rev. C. H. Eichinger will be named late this week as pastors from a thousand Ohio Methodist Episcopal church assembly for the Ohio conference in Columbus. The six-day session opens Wednesday morning.

Just who Rev. Eichinger's successor will be has not been determined and probably will not be earlier than Monday morning.

More than 700 pastors from churches in 50 counties that comprise the district will be on hand when the first meeting of the conference opens. The state is divided into two conferences, the southern Ohio group being slightly larger than the northern Ohio.

Selection of two district superintendents, admission to the conference of 22 German Methodist churches in the territory covered by the Ohio conferences, and the regular assignment of pastors will comprise principal business.

TWO TO RETURN

Dr. E. K. Johnson, superintendent of the Defiance district, and Dr. C. F. Bowman, Portsmouth district will yield their positions and return to pastorates because of the six-year time limit.

Status of the German churches will be exactly the same as that of any other churches in the conference after their inclusion to the membership lists this week. The conference now has a membership of more than 250,000.

From the early German Methodist system of supplying pastors, has arisen the present Methodist circuit pastor plan (Continued on Page Two)

BILLY SUNDAY'S SON IS CLAIMED

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Injuries suffered in a mysterious three-story plunge from his apartment window had proved fatal today to George M. Sunday, 40, son of Evangelist "Billy" Sunday.

Sunday died while under an anesthetic as physicians operated on his fractured jaw.

His mother, Mrs. Hallie Sunday, revealed that she had felt a "strange premonition" of death all day yesterday.

Sunday had insisted the fall was accidental, although his wife first told police he had threatened suicide after a bitter quarrel with her.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff received a call early Tuesday morning from the home of Rev. Sam C. Elses, Columbus-pk.

"Don Rader, who operates the Lingo filling station across the road from us was robbed last night and wants you to come out," a voice reported.

Sheriff Radcliff went to the scene. The proprietor of the Elses filling station, directly across the road from the Lingo station, came running to the sheriff. "Say, you better come over here, I guess we were robbed too," he said.

An investigation by the sheriff revealed that the thieves entered the Lingo station, owned by Ben Gordon, and stole three large tires, a tan suede jacket, a black

FAVOR LIQUOR, SALES TO AID TAX PROGRAM

Sentiment Hot Over Proposals to Tax Liquor For Schools

SOLONS PUZZLED

Committee of Three Studying Action

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—Ending a 12-day recess, Ohio's "marathon" legislature returned to Columbus today and walked into hotbed of conflicting sentiment over proposals for liquor taxation and a general retail sales tax as a means of raising $5,700,000 for distressed schools throughout the state.

Strong possibility existed that a liquor tax would be included in the fund-raising program, despite the opposition of both Governor George White and the Ohio Anti-Saloon League. It was reported also that proponents of the plan were prepared to stage a fight on the floor of the legislature of a general retail sales tax plan, reviving the bitter controversy that raged during the regular session last spring.

SESSION GOES ON

Meantime, it appeared possible that the legislature, which has been embroiled in seeking a solution to the taxation problem since last January, may have to continue in session until October before it can finally get its job completed.

The taxation problem today was shunted on to the shoulders of a sub-committee of three, appointed by the special joint taxation committee. The liquor tax proposal and the general retail sales tax plan were expected to be considered by the sub-committee, which is comprised of Representative Keith W. Lawrence (D) of Cleveland, and Charles H. Jones (R) of Jackson, and Senator D. J. Gunsett (D) of Van Wert, chairman of the special taxation committee.

Both Lawrence and Jones supported the two percent retail sales tax plan proposed by Governor White at the last regular session of the legislature. Gunsett, however, is known to be a bitter foe of such a plan.

TO TAX WHISKY

Predictions were bandied about by committee members today that a tax of $2 a gallon on prescription whisky will be one of the proposals included in the program to be submitted to the legislature as a whole when it convenes this afternoon.

The predictions were made in the face of stout opposition expressed yesterday by Governor White who expressed the opinion that a high liquor tax would "encourage the continuation of bootlegging."

NESBITT DRIVER FOR McSWEENEY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—Jake Nesbitt, who has served seven years of a life sentence for the murder of his wife in Troy, had a "new job" today.

He has been assigned to the staff of chauffeurs of State Welfare Director John McSweeney, it was learned. Nesbitt, an Ohio State University graduate, has been a clerk at the penitentiary for several years.

He has been accorded the usual privileges given prisoners with the best behavior records.

McSweeney makes frequent trips to the 21 other state penal, correctional, and medical institutions and a staff of drivers is required for the director and his assistants. Frequently, "good behavior" prisoners are given the jobs.

Elmore Baker, Watt-st., is being held in the city jail for investigation, following his arrest Monday by Officer William McCrady.

Hedges, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to rob the Mecca Restaurant, W. Main-st., May 25, has gone insane and was to be returned to New York City by officials Tuesday.

Authorities stopped here Tuesday enroute to Cincinnati to return Wright. He walked into the Mecca restaurant on May 25, asked for a cup of coffee and while a clerk was getting it, he attempted to rob the cash register, but was stopped by Officer "Bugs" Stonerock, a clerk.

S. T. RIFE RESIGNS

Mr. Rife has been teaching history, social science, civics and commercial law. He served as a grade teacher before entering the high school.

Miss Reba Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lee, Northridge-rd., was substituting Tuesday afternoon for Mr. Rife. A permanent successor will be named later.

BOHNERT BILL AGAIN BEATEN

Taxation Committee Spurns Measure To Abolish County School Job.

OTHER BILL PASSES

Will Give Money To County Officers.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—The relentless fight to abolish the position of county school superintendent, directed by Rep. Nathan C. Bohnert (D) of Pickaway-co., today was once more doomed to defeat through action taken last night by the legislature's special taxation committee.

Spurning a bill by Bohnert which would allow county school boards to do away with the job, the committee gave its approval to an opposition measure appropriating $86,000 annually as the state's contribution to county superintendent's salaries.

$950 PER COUNTY

The rival bill allows the state to contribute a maximum of $950 per county in compliance with present state law. Senator Daniel J. Gunsett (D) of Van Wert, committee chairman, warned that superintendents would suffer salary decreases unless the measure is passed.

Approval of the opposition bill marks the second rebuff for Bohnert in his campaign against county superintendents.

His own bill, introduced early during the regular session several months ago, was rejected by the house schools committee, and died with expiration of the regular session. Re-introduced during the special session, it bore the name of a co-author, Rep. E. Ray Hummel (D) of Carroll-co. No discussion of the measure was held by the committee last night. The committee voted unanimously to recommend the opposition bill.

CIVIC LEADER, PUMPKIN SHOW HEAD, CLAIMED

Death Comes Quietly at Home; Complications Cause Demise

RITES THURSDAY

Widow, Two Children Survive Able Man

Thomas F. Jeffries, aged 59, civic leader and senior member of Jeffries and Colville, dry goods merchants, died at his home, 303 S. Scioto-st., Tuesday at 2:40 a. m. of complications. Mr. Jeffries' fatal illness was of one month's duration.

He became critical less than one week ago and his demise had been momentarily expected since Sunday. The entire city was shocked by his death which ended a noble fight against an illness which gradually wore away his resistance.

Mr. Jeffries' death removes one of Circleville's most active supporters. He believed in his city ahead of everything except members of his family to whom he was a devoted husband and father.

BEGAN AS CLERK

He began his career as a clerk in the firm of Finkel and Henderson and to the time of his death was engaged in business in the same location on S. Court-st. In 1910 the store became the property of Mr. Jeffries and Robert G. Colville who have continued as partners since that time.

The greatest hobby in his life, if it can be called that, was his devotion to the Pumpkin Show. He had served as treasurer of the society for many years and guided the organization over many rough spots. His position in the society will be difficult to fill.

He was a past president of the Chamber of Commerce and at the time of his death was a director. He served as president of the Circleville Industrial Co., devoted to the interests of the city, and was a member of city council for 15 years, declining re-election because of his increasing business activities.

GRADUATE OF O. S. U.

Mr. Jeffries was a devout member of St. Joseph's Catholic church and served on the Pumpkin Show appointed in 1908 to study construction of a new church and residence. He was a graduate of St. Joseph's parochial school and of Ohio State university.

The deceased was a lifelong member of the Democratic party and had served for a number of years as a member of the Pickaway-co executive committee.

Fraternally he was affiliated with Circleville lodge No. 77 B. P. O. Elks, Modern Woodmen, and the Pickaway Country club.

Thomas Floyd Jeffries was born in Circleville Feb. 20, 1874, a son of J. F. and Harriett Jeffries. He was married to Cecilia Prather, a Lancaster native, on Sept. 2, 1896.

Mrs. Jeffries and two children, Erma, wife of Dr. D. J. Bradley of Cincinnati, and Lawrence, an attorney of Lancaster, survive. Mr. Jeffries is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Ida Fellers, this city, a brother, John G. of Columbus, and three grandchildren, Mary Jean, Thomas David and Barbara Ann Bradley, children of Dr. and Mrs. D. J. Bradley.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 8:30 a. m. at St. Joseph's church with Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

Palbearers will be T. O. Gilliland, Mayor B. T. Hedges, Durward Dowden, R. G. Colville, S. T. Rife and L. M. Butch.

YOUTHS HANG FOR MURDER OF WOMAN

AMHERST, N. S., Sept. 12.—Convicted of the brutal murder of a lifelong friend, two 19-year-old youths were hanged here today.

They were Truman Smith and Alvah Henwood, found guilty of slaying Mrs. Elmer Smith, aged invalid, and robbing her of $130 on Feb. 3 last.

It was the first double execution in the history of the maritime province and the first time the same court had sentenced two defendants to death on the same day.

PLAN TO ARRAIGN INDICTED PERSONS

Ten persons, indicted by the recent grand jury, will be arraigned in common pleas court Wednesday morning, Judge J. W. Adkins announced Tuesday.

Lee and Petty Tangle Today

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—Although they finished the American Association season in first place and with a 15½-game advantage, the Columbus Red Birds today had a big job on their hands before they can claim the association pennant.

Under a new system of association play, the Birds, champions of the eastern division in the circuit, must meet the Minneapolis Millers, champions of the western division, in a playoff series.

The winning team will tackle the International League champions in the Little World Series.

First game of the series between the Birds and the Millers was scheduled today, with Bill Lee, giant right-handed youth pitching for the Columbus club, and Jess Petty, veteran hurler, getting the assignment for the Millers.

Night games Wednesday and Thursday are on the calendar for the clubs, before the scene changes from Bird stadium here to the Minneapolis ball park where play is to be resumed Saturday.

SENATORS AND GIANTS NEARER TO BIG SERIES

Miracle Appears Only Thing Which Can Keep Two Clubs From Pennant.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Only a few final steps today separated the Washington Senators and the New York Giants from the Golden gates of the 1933 World series.

If the Giants take ten of their remaining nineteen games, the second-place Chicago Cubs will have to snatch all of their remaining sixteen games to win the National league pennant.

Washington only has to get an even break in sixteen remaining games to annex the American league flag, even though the runner-up New York Yankees should win all of the eighteen games still on their schedule.

The Giants downed Cincinnati again yesterday, 3 to 1, and now lead the Cubs by eight full games. Carl Hubbell, ace of the New Yorkers' pitching staff, once more was the rescuing hero. This time it was Herman Bell who was in trouble, so Hubbell hurled the last three innings and humbled Red Lucas, who these many weeks has been in the embarrassing position of a grand pitcher with a poor club. In all the enemy got only six hits off Bell and Hubbell, Carl getting downright stingy by handing out just one.

Beating Cleveland 5 to 1, the Senators moved nine and a half games ahead of the Yankees. Monte Weaver spaced the Indians' eight safeties and Cleveland was unable to score until the ninth. Goslin got three hits and Schulte and Manush each a pair for Washington.

Cuba's plight after 10 years of Machado will at least enable Germans to see what's ahead for Hitler-land.

We refer to Ansell Estell who has gained Varsity recognition for his pitching, in his Sophomore year of college. Ansell has faced Indiana, Illinois, Ohio Wesleyan, and other good teams during the past season gaining valuable experience.

This summer he is playing with an independent team at Yellowbud with great success, working hard to gain good control.

CHILDREN TO HOME

Opal Phillips, aged 9, and her two sisters, Pauline, 6, and Leona, 18 months, minor children of Opie Phillips of Williamsport R. F. D., an inmate of the county jail, were taken to the Children's Home Monday by Juvenile Officer Frank Goff. Mrs. Myrtle Phillips, the mother, said she was unable to support the children.

Swearingen Family Had Important Part In Fort Dearborn Founding

One of the most historic events of the World's Fair at Chicago this year was the centennial anniversary of the election of the first town officers of Chicago and the anniversary of the massacre at Fort Dearborn. Invitations to attend the ceremonies observing these events were sent here but, unfortunately, none of the recipients were able to attend.

The invitations were received by members of the Swearingen family, descendants of James Strode Swearingen, one of Fort Dearborn's founders and early settlers. James S. Swearingen, namesake and eldest grandson of the pioneer, and Grant Swearingen, both of Jackson-tpw, H. B. of Boston, and Thomas of Columbus, all were asked to visit the city. The Chicago Historical society and the Junior Association of Commerce of Chicago both urged the descendants to attend the celebration.

James Strode Swearingen was a native of Virginia and at the age of 16 became clerk of Fredericksburg, Virginia. On account of delicate health he later was advised to seek a change of climate and decided to join a body of pioneers who were seeking homes in Ohio, then a wilderness.

He was successful in exchanging his Virginia properties for land in the Chillicothe vicinity.

In 1800, at the age of 18, he was made an ensign in the army and two years later was named a lieutenant and was considered such a good soldier that he was selected to guide a party to Lake Erie. When he reached Detroit he was entrusted to the command of a company which hurried to the relief of the settlement at Chicago.

There he remained in command during the building of Fort Dearborn.

He returned to Ohio after a while and finally located in Jackson-tpw. He succumbed February 3, 1864.

THE ROMANS had a phrase for it—

"CAVEAT EMPTOR," meaning "Let the buyer beware." This wasn't used as a bit of balm to ease the ancient conscience; nor, yet, was it placarded in the booths and stalls of the market-place. It was a piece of every-day knowledge, born of dear-bought experience.

A shopkeeper knew little about the source of his merchandise. This tunic he bought from a trader, who said it came from Byzantium. So he sold it as the latest Byzantine style. The trader told him the dye was pure Tyrian—it wouldn't fade. So he sold it as Tyrian dyed. But the buyer knew the responsibility was his own. If he guessed wrongly, or his judgment was poor, it was his hard luck.

Today, fortunately, there are safer guides than the blanket-warning to "let your eyes be your market."

These guides are the newspaper advertisements. In this newspaper, they are a daily catalog of the best values in town—signed by responsible firms. If the goods are not all that is claimed for them, their sponsors would need to "beware." For no business can thrive on a one-time sale, or on dissatisfied customers.

A signed advertisement is, in a way, like a promissory note. The advertiser has made a statement, and affixed his signature as a sign of good faith.

So, read the advertisements before you start out on a buying-trip. Make this a daily habit, and see how much you save . . . in time, in temper, in money, in shoe-leather.

COUNTRY TO START OFFENSE ON CRIME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Fifteen years from the day the American army hurled itself against the heavily fortified St. Mohiel salient in one of the decisive engagements of the war, the government today was preparing to attack in a new warfare against organized crime.

"It is a real war which confronts us all—a war that must be successfully fought if life and property are to be secure in our country," Attorney General Cummings declared.

"Organized crime is an open challenge to our civilization, and the manner in which we meet it will be a test of our capacity for self government. This in the kind of a government which our forefathers set up and it is my confident belief that we shall not be recreant to our great heritage."

PRESS IS PRAISED

Cummings praised the press, referring to the Hearst papers among others.

The racketeer exacts a billion dollars a year from legitimate business according to Cummings. He said the corrupting influence of this evil growth spreads in many directions.

Cummings hinted on the organization of some form of national police force. He said the problem involved the development of a system suitable to the American requirements. While there are constitutional limitations he thought the problem might be met without doing violence to the constitution or American traditions.

"The warfare which an armed underworld is waging upon organized society has reached disturbing proportions," Cummings continued. "The prevalence of predatory crime, including kidnapping and racketeering, demands the utmost diligence upon the part of our law enforcing agencies, supported by an informed and aroused public sentiment."

Since the passage of the federal kidnapping law in June, 1932, every kidnapping case handled by the U. S. division of investigation has been solved, Cummings said. Fifteen cases were investigated resulting in 17 convictions, including a death sentence and two life sentences. Thirty persons are in custody awaiting trial.

No Artists In That House

By IRVIN S. COBB

A SELF-MADE Western millionaire built the finest house in his home town. He imported decorators to furnish it, and managed to get it finished by the time his eldest son arrived from the East where the youth had been completing his education.

The proud father escorted the young man through the shining new mansion, followed by the other members of the household.

the grand tour had been completed the millionaire inquired whether the son had any suggestions to make.

"Well," said the young man, "to me it seems complete in every possible detail except one."

"What's missin'?" demanded the parent.

"You ought to have a chandelier in the main drawing-room," said the boy.

"All right," said the father. "I'll order one by telegraph tonight but I'll bet a thousand dollars there ain't a damn one in the family can play it."

Thomas F. Jeffries

WHAT a booster for Circleville he was!

In the death of Thomas F. Jeffries this city lost one of its most ardent workers, one of its most noble supporters and a man admired by all who came in contact with him in his many activities for the good of the community.

He was the kind of man whose family must share him with the community which he helped so much to build.

His character had many sides, all of them brilliant. A tireless worker in many and varied lines of activity, there was never anything of the selfish in his makeup. Worldly possessions meant only the means to generous ends. A needy man was as highly respected by him as was a man of great means. He was a man among men.

His political side was predicated upon an intense patriotism and was based upon those principles of Democracy which have the greatest human appeal. From those principles he never wavered, hence his fine partisanship.

"Tom" Jeffries' life was dedicated to Circleville and its good. He was a bulwark in the Chamber of Commerce and guided it with a firm and energetic hand for a number of years; his activities in his political party and his church were untiring, and his place in the Circleville Pumpkin Show society where he had served from its birth will be difficult to fill.

He was one of the fine type of American men whose personality is a real asset to American ideals.

The death of Thomas F. Jeffries is indeed a severe blow to the community.

At least railroads will not brag at the end of 1933 how few passengers were killed in wrecks.

Butler Urges Changes

HOW to improve the functioning of the federal government is a question which in recent years has claimed attention inside and outside of congress, but without any effective steps in this direction being taken.

One of the most fruitful sources of trouble has been friction between the executive and the legislative branches. This has served to delay if not defeat important legislation outside of matters directly involved in the dispute and to inject into legislative attempts prejudices and other factors that could not make for calm and impassioned consideration of subjects.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, a careful student of government, has been giving some thought to the problem of effecting changes which would make for more smooth operation of the machinery of government, not only with respect to the relations between the executive and the legislative branches but in other particulars regarded as equally important. Four recommendations are made by him. In substance, they are:

1. Requirement by statute that congressional amendments be submitted for ratification to state conventions, the members of which shall be elected at large "and to be chosen and to convene within a time designated by the statute following the submission of an amendment."

2. "Establishment by the president of a council of foreign relations," to aid in negotiating treaties and in conducting international conferences and assemblies. The council would include "perhaps, the secretary of state and two other persons selected by the president, three senators to be chosen by the senate and three representatives to be appointed by the house."

3. Bringing the executive and legislative branches into more harmonious cooperation by "providing that the principal officer of each executive department may occupy a seat on the floor of the senate and house" for explaining administration measures on which congress might desire more light.

4. "Abolition of the direct primary and nomination of candidates by convention."

All four of the recommendations cover points which have at times been brought into prominence by specific occurrences that emphasized the importance of their relation to public welfare. Creation of the proposed council of foreign relations, Dr. Butler said, would not affect the present power of the senate in ratifying treaties, "but surely there is every likelihood that power would then be exercised with more concern for the public welfare and for the highest ideals of the American people than has so often been the case during the last quarter century." This, he

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Joan Hastings and her sweetheart, Bill Martin, are separated when her stern aunt, Evvie Van Fleet, learns of the romance and sends Joan away to school with one seeing Bill. Enroute from her home in Sausalito, California to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Joan slips off the train and goes back to Bill's home only to learn that he had left town. Unable to return to her aunt's home, Joan goes to San Francisco. She lives with good-natured Mrs. Maisie Kimmer, whose daughter, Francine, gives Joan a position modeling in her exclusive Maison Francine. Wealthy Curtis Barstow falls in love with Joan but her heart is still with Bill though she believes he no longer cares. Lydia Barstow disapproves of her son's interest in Joan. Bill is befriended by Rollo Keyes, wealthy playboy, whose father gives Bill a position. He learns surveying and is well on the road to success. Unable to stay away any longer, Bill returns home to try and find Joan. He learns Joan's whereabouts and waits outside Francine's shop for her. Joan turns white at the sight of him, but holds herself aloof. Hurt at her attitude, Bill apologizes for upsetting her and leaves. Ruth Gillespie, a model, asks Joan to make a foursome with Rollo Keyes, Ruth's fiancé, and his friend. Ruth confides in Joan that she is really in love with Rollo's friend, who turns out to be Bill. Joan is hurt to think that Bill can care for Ruth so soon after loving her and is indifferent towards him. Months pass and Joan is just becoming accustomed to seeing Bill with Ruth, when Bill comes back.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIX

The door bell rang. Maisie, of course, she's forgotten her gloves! What a shame, to have to come all the way back, with those terrible high heels, and her feet hurting so. . . .

But it wasn't Maisie. It was Bill. Bill with the dear, dark head, the blue eyes, and the little trail of freckles over his nose, that would keep him from ever quite growing up. Bill to whom she had given her heart and her tears. Bill, come back like a ghost, to haunt her, to torture her, and then slip silently away again, leaving her to forget. . . . if she could.

"They wavered in the doorway, tall awkward Bill, and Joan still with Maisie's kitchen apron tied round her neck, and the white gloves in her hand.

"Come in," she said. Untied the apron, set the gloves on a table, carefully, as if they were made of glass, and would break.

Joan leaned against the table watching him, cold and motionless as a lump of ice.

"I don't know where to begin," he burst out at last. "Joan, I had to see you. I couldn't go on this way. . . . He broke off and pointed to the closed door to Maisie's room. "Is there anyone there?"

She shook her head. "No. No one."

"Joan, you're making it so hard for me!"

"You're not making things easy for me, coming here," she said, faintly reassured by his nervousness. A feeling of resentment grew in her, resentment against this Bill who could still tear her heart, still make her care that he seemed unhappy—"

"But I had to come!" he cried savagely. "I had to see you. . . . tell you. . . . Oh, Johnny, to marry you, came back, and I never knew. Writing letters too, and me not getting one of them."

She clenched her hands behind her, to keep from reaching them out to him, to keep from crying—"Then you did care—you did!"

What was he saying? She held tight to the table. "I felt like a fool when I heard you. I would have married you, Joan, I will, yet if you'll have me. I should have been shot. . . . I must have been crazy—crazy—"

So that was why he had come. Conscience. Remorse. Wanting to make amends now. . . . even. . . . even to marrying her, if she wanted him to. . . .

Her flesh crawled. Why must she listen? Why didn't she tell him to go? "Please," she said quite steadily. "Please don't. I never think about it. It's so far behind us. It's—it's absurd you're coming here now!"

"Absurd! Joan, you're putting me off again. You're not giving me a chance to talk. Every time I've seen you, you've done just the same thing—high-hatted me—changed the subject—"

"Then can't you see it's distasteful to me—can't you see I don't want to talk to you—"

"No—Joan, it was all a mistake, all a miserable mistake, and I won't rest till I make it right, or as right as I can. I'm going to make you listen—"

She laughed shakily. "Even if I don't want to. Even if I want you to go! Even if I'd rather not look at you—"

"And a year ago—less than a year ago, you promised—look at me, Joan—you promised—"

The last of her self-control was slipping. He held her two hands

Her eyes were closed, her lips tragically pressed together. Her breath came in rasping sobs. With the little strength that was left in her she kept her face averted, pushed him away with her clenched hands.

His mind whirled in dark circles, dark circles of deep water, whirlpools sucking him in to despair. "I've lost her now. . . . I've gone at it the wrong way. . . . frightened her. . . . Joan, come back! Come back to me—"

He did not hear Maisie's key turn in the lock, but Joan did. "Let me go!" she whimpered, frozen with terror and shame.

Her eyes were fixed on the door, waiting, waiting for Maisie to come in, find them—

Maisie's china blue eyes were round with terror. She stood teetering in the doorway, on her high, high heels, her mouth open, the key dangling foolishly in her hand. "Maisie!" Joan cried. "Maisie!" Somehow she freed herself from Maisie's china blue eyes were round with terror. She stood teetering in the doorway.

in his now, in another moment he would force her to meet his eyes. And see. . . . And see. . . . "And don't you know what a year can bring?" she cried desperately. "I notice it brought plenty to you. Well, it has to me too. I haven't spent it weeping for you. There's someone else now—"

"Barstow—"

"Never mind who—" "You don't care for him!" He had her in his arms now, was forcing her face back so that he could look into her eyes. "Johnny, you can't—you're lying to me. I don't know why, but you are. You can't mean it. You're mine—mine—mine—"

"Let me go," she whispered thickly, "let me go—"

"I'll never let you go!" he cried desperately, because he thought he had lost her forever. Joan the only girl he had ever loved, the only girl he would ever love. . . . "You belong to me, Joan. You can't undo that, you're mine—always. Nobody else—"

"Let me go—let me go!" She was sobbing now, beating her clenched hands ineffectually against his chest—"Please—"

But Bill was beyond reason now, beyond appeal. He only knew that Joan was slipping away. . . . slipping away and he must not let her go.

He held her tighter and tighter in his arms. "You're mine," he whispered incoherently. "You can't drop me for somebody else. . . . you can't. . . . Joan, let me talk to you, don't turn your head away. . . . see Joan—"

Bill's grasp, ran, wildly weeping and flung herself in Maisie's arms. "Maisie!" Tears blinded her. Great hiccupping sobs strangled her, shook her so that she could hardly stand.

When she opened her swollen eyes and looked into the kind pink face so close to hers the room was very quiet. Bill was gone. She knew that he would never come back.

"I told you to keep away from that Gillespie girl and her rough-neck friends. The low down thing—the miserable—"

Joan began to laugh, hysterical, sobbing laughter that racked and tore at her throat. "It's so funny, your talking about Ruth now, because it's true—he's her friend. But he wasn't Maisie. He—he's the one I knew, Maisie—the one I loved—" She laughed again, peal after peal of helpless, merciless laughter—"It's so funny!—Your guessing it. . . . Ruth, you know—"

And then she was crying again, gaspingly, brokenly. "I can't bear it—I can't—"

"There, there," Maisie crooned, "there, there—" She sank into the rocking chair, drew the weeping girl half into her lap.

"There, there, don't cry, dear—don't cry—" Her mind went leaping back over the girl's scrappy history, the little confidences, the few words of that one she had loved—Bill—

When Joan looked up at her again through her tears she saw that Maisie was crying, too. "Poor child," Maisie murmured brokenly. . . . "Poor child—"

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

The Ashville high school football team lost no time in getting ready for their first game, and held their first practice on Monday afternoon, Sept. 4. The initial practice found 24 men ready for work, however most of these were new and inexperienced. There are seven letter men back this year, around which the team will have to be built. The letter men back are C. Baker, fullback; Scoles, quarterback; Morrison, tackle; Williams, guard; McGone, guard; Ward, halfback, and Young, end. The addition of Warren (senior) and Henry (sophomore) Steinbrook should help the team a great deal especially since Warren has had a year of experience at Greenfield high school last year. Ashville plays its first game at Bremen on Sept. 15, at 3:30 p. m.

The sixth grade organized a history club to discuss news of the present day for the coming school year. William Martin was elected president and Dorothy Hinkle secretary. The World's Fair at Chicago seems to be the present topic of most interest.

The sixth grade had 100 per cent attendance during the first week of the school year. Twelve girls and sixteen boys have registered.

Kathryn Bowers, Roberta Cromley, and Edgar Hedges will represent the eighth grade in the grade orchestra this year.

The first meeting of the Mercantile Literary Society was held Friday afternoon. Mrs. Cooper was again selected as critic. The following new officers were elected: President, Georgia Bowers; vice president, Frank Williams; secretary, Maxine Canter; program committee, Charlotte Rhodes, Dick Morrison, Francine Runkle.

Warren Steinbrook is a new member in the senior class. Miss Virginia Yeager of Pittsburgh, Pa., visited Ashville high school, Thursday, with Maxine Canter.

Our enrollment in the Ashville schools to date is as follows: Grade one, 40; two, 26; three, 28; four, 31; five, 30; six, 26; seven, 24; eight, 28; nine, 37; ten, 30; eleven, 37; twelve, 27. There are at least half a dozen grade children and eight or ten high school pupils who are either out because of sickness, poverty or to work at the present time.

Our P. T. A. officers for this school year are: Mrs. Leroy Cromley, president; Mrs. C. A. Highley, vice president; Mrs. Frank Morrison, secretary, and Mrs. Clyde Brinker, treasurer. The first meeting of the year will be held on Sept. 21.

Eight local teachers have declared their intention of staying for the luncheon to be given at the Washington school after the teachers meeting next Saturday.

There are 30 pupils enrolled in grade four. Jimmie Plum is a transfer student from the Bexley Elementary school. The fourth grade is studying important facts about Ohio in geography class; in language classes they are writing stories about their pets for their pet book.

The following students are enrolled in the seventh grade: Inez Armentrout, Mary June Barten, Jean Brinker, Mary Margaret Carley, Lucille Chamberlain, Robert Courtright, Billy Gerhardt, Josephine Good, Janavie Harris, Ethel Hiles, Leroy Hoover, Helen Kibbee, Aaron Miller, Helen Miller, Maribelle Miller, James Neece, Kenneth Rathburn, Edwin Raver, Isabella Scoles, Virgie Lee Six, Dorothy Spangler, Esther Spangler, Bernard Walden, and Andrew Ward.

Francine Runkle will furnish a vocal solo and Richard Welsh a trumpet solo at the first county teachers meeting to be held at Washington Sept. 16.

The enrollment in the first grade this year is 39. There are 27 boys and 12 girls.

The fifth grade has an enrollment of 31 pupils. Only the prices on fuel and lubricating oils continued to fall. Lumber and chemicals were the highest, with 137 and 133 respectively.

Crocodile Tricky With Tail

A crocodile's limbs and claws are not strong enough to do a great deal of aggressive mischief, but one swift, unexpected side-stroke of its long, muscular tail is sufficient to sweep a smaller animal into the water and deal a dangerous blow to a man.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Public Works Board. They got no satisfaction from either.

The next thrust was of a public character. It was what caused Henry I. Harriman, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, to issue a blast denouncing NRA "discrimination" against the open shop.

Harriman's declaration of war was significant. It gave public notice of the organized employers' intention to resist unionized labor. It also brought into the open an omniscient rift within the NRA.

Harriman is a member of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board. For some weeks the big business membership of this body has been increasingly irritated over Johnson's labor policy. Finally when the Labor Advisory Board issued a sharp criticism of the law, clause in the automobile code, the employers blew up.

They held a secret meeting and drafted a counter blast. General Johnson, however, heard of it and sprang into action. He summoned Walter C. Teague and Gerard Swope, chairman and senior member of the Board. In the interest of peace he urged them to shelve the statement. They did.

But other members of the Board insisted that some public reply be made to the Labor group. The

Cuban Merry-Go-Round

When President Roosevelt received the four Latin American diplomats to explain the Cuban situation, he looked around the room and said: "Where is the Minister of Uruguay?"

He had been invited, but never received the invitation.

Now he is the most disappointed man in Washington.

The Cuban crisis has brought F. D. R.'s Latin American policy to a crossroad. In six months he had won more good will than other presidents in six years.

Reciprocity treaties, withdrawal of marines from Haiti, the common American front at London, all gave him a big build-up below the Rio Grande.

Now he risks losing all in a few days.

It all depends on the final outcome in Cuba.

Grau San Martin, a leading member of the revolutionary junta, has been editor of "Somebody's" Cuba's combination of "Ballyhoo" and "La Vie Parisienne," with a lot of radicalism thrown in.

--- In explaining the Cuban situation to the ABC Mexican diplomats, Roosevelt put a lot of blame on New York bankers. They were the ones who kept Machado in power, he said, and all of Cuba plus the United States—is now paying for the consequences. --- The bankers, he said, will have to scale down their debts or lose everything.

Three Found in Lake

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Bodies of two men and a girl who disappeared last Wednesday on an attempted autogyro flight from South Bend, Ind., to Chicago had been recovered today from Lake Michigan.

Friends identified the three bodies as those of Miss Majenta Gerard, 22, of River Forest, Ill., H. W. (Spud) Manning of Fico, Cal., world's champion parachute jumper, and Charles T. Otto of Haverford, Pa., pilot of the autogyro.

All three bodies were washed ashore near Indiana Harbor, Ind., late yesterday. No trace of the plane was found.

MONDAY CLUB HAS FIRST FALL MEETING

The first meeting, after the summer vacation, of the Monday club was held in the club room at Memorial hall September 11. Mrs. Clark Will, the retiring president, presented the gavel to the new president Miss Jeanette Reichelderfer. Miss Reichelderfer made a gracious speech of acceptance which was warmly applauded by the club.

Mrs. Carl Ritz, chairman of the psychology division of the club in charge of the program of the evening, introduced the speakers, Mrs. W. T. Ulm and Mrs. Loren Lutz.

Mrs. Ulm, whose subject was "These Minds of Ours" told of the four layers of mind, the animal mind, the savage mind, the child mind and the civilized mind. The chief distinction between animal and man being not speech but the fact that man learns from man. Tradition is a habit of thought organized systems of thought and complexes. The most intelligent man is the one who can escape from habit and form his own conclusions. Our most successful scientists have been crucified on the cross of tradition. Genius is nine-tenths per cent hard work. If a child is taught reasoning the foundation for his success has been laid. Hence our best teachers should be given the first grades at school. We live in direct proportion to our interest in life.

The Greeks were wiser than they knew when they stood for 'A sound mind in a sound body.' Life insurance statistics have proven that educated people have a lower mortality rate than the average American man. The real test of sanity is our ability to get on with our fellowman with the least friction.

Mrs. Loren Lutz followed Mrs. Ulm with a paper on "Psychology in Retrospect and in Prospect." She traced the beginnings of study or psychology from the time of Adam and Eve who first practiced it, through the Greek philosophers, the Germans, the French to the

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 37.

Published by STEVENSON'S

Tuesday, September 12, 1933

Just a week ago today, a party from away up at Pataskala dropped in and inquired about the genuine Estate Heatrola. These people had been visiting at a home in Amanda, where we had installed a Heatrola some seven years ago. Our users are so well pleased with the results from their Heatrola that the visitors wanted to see them and to get prices. Boy, oh, boy, but such instances make us feel good! Our Amanda customer—with one in their home and another one in their grocery—boosted the Heatrola so highly that their friends want one. Truly, our customers sell more Heatrolas for us than we sell.

And speaking of Heatrolas, the family of Mr. M., out east of Roundtown, will find a very comfortable winter, even to the little "feller" that plays upon the floor. We installed a Heatrola in their home just a few days ago, the first one for this fall. With a scarcity of Heatrolas in sight, and with prospects of higher prices, our advice to the readers of RTT is that if you are thinking of buying a new Heatrola this fall, GET BUSY NOW.

The lady to whom we recently delivered that lovely Estate gas range came in Friday and told us how well pleased she was with her purchase. She says that she is baking and does not have to turn her pies and cakes from burning before the center is done. We are pleased to know that we have another satisfied member of the Estate Fresh-Air Club. Who's next?

The lady mentioned above also informed us that she had a SLUMBERON inner-spring mattress on her bed and that if she couldn't get another like it, she wouldn't take $100.00 for it. She must like her mattress, for the price is only $34.75. Just think of the many hours of restful sleep that may be had on such a wonderful mattress for so little money! Better look after your bedding and see if it is as comfortable as you would like.

Did you see that spiffy two-piece living room suite in tapestry that we are showing in our east window? We think that it is a dandy for only $71.25. There's another one back in the store that is a wonder for just a little more money—$83.50. Either suite would add grace to any home in this community. And comfort! Say, you should sit upon them.

A lady, who lives out near Stoutsville, has been wanting a kitchen cabinet for years. Realizing that the prices are now at rock-bottom, came in and purchased one of the latest models of the SELLERS line. With this fine piece of kitchen furniture in her home, she'll save thousands of steps each year. And the cabinet will add beauty and charm to her kitchen, too. It's a real work-bench.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Hull Out For New Policy To Handle Warlike Europe

WASHINGTON—As soon as the Cuban situation quiets, Secretary Hull is planning a long and confidential talk with F. D. R. over major American foreign policy—especially Europe.

What Hull and Roosevelt face is a Europe more torn with suspicion and war preparation than at any time since the Armistice.

The most significant thing is the fact that the French Socialists, once crusaders for peace, now have thrown in their lot—a majority of them—with the French militarists. They think France has more to gain by an aggressive military policy than merely keeping armed strength at the present level.

Confidential sources received by Hull's advisers also show that the French peasant, for years immovable when it came to fear of war threats, is now apprehensive.

The key to this is an aggressive Germany. Hitler, the French think, will have to act drastically to save his prestige. The economic condition in Germany today is worse than before. Hitler had promised a millennium. So, the French think, he will have to act drastically. An offensive abroad will distract public attention from trouble at home.

The Old Bus

For four years Larry Richey, confidential secretary of Herbert Hoover, occupied an expensive office in the White House. He was in it almost every day, including many Sundays. He was also one of the most familiar callers in the residential section of the White House; almost as much a figure as Mr. Hoover. Since March 4 things changed.

But the other day Richey was standing on Sixteenth Street waiting for a taxi. Suddenly he heard a honk-honk. Looking around he saw Steve Early, one of the White House secretaries who has taken Richey's place. Early was driving the White House car which Richey had used for four years.

"Jump in Larry," yelled Early, "and take a ride in your old car."

"And that," says the ex-Secretary of Herbert Hoover, "is the nearest I've been to White House property since March 4."

Big Business

It is no secret that Big Business is bucking the labor provisions of the NRA codes. But the extent to which it has worked out secret plans for sabotage has just come to General Johnson.

What Big Business plans to fight, tooth-and-nail, is Labor's militant drive to unionize the Nation under the spreading wings of the Blue Eagle. Such unionization was contemplated by Congress. It was specifically provided for in the bill creating the NRA.

But just the same Big Business opposes it, and its secret plan of attack was formulated at the recent Chicago meeting of the National Manufacturers' Association with allied organizations.

The first move was a behind-the-scenes attempt to apply pressure of the Administration. A committee of six leading open-shop manufacturers went to Washington, made a personal protest against the Administration's pro-labor leanings.

The delegation had two secret meetings with General Johnson and Secretary Ickes—head of the

Board Requests County Schools "Buy at Home"

All Purchases Possible Should be Made in Home Communities in View of Economic Conditions, County Group Urges; Economy Also to Be Watched

Following its edict last fall that economy should be the keynote in all high school functions, including commencement exercises, the county board of education, today, was on record advocating that purchases for schools should be made locally as much as possible.

This includes purchases of jewels, such as class-rings and rings; photographs of classes, individual students or athletic teams, and anything else that it bought.

It was the opinion of the board that considering economic conditions as much should be purchased at home as possible, and also as economically as possible.

HOOVER, WILLIS, DUNKLE JOIN IN RACE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Trio on Same Petition Filed With Election Board; Meyers, Barch, Brown and Spangler Are Other Four Candidates; Superintendent's Job Is Question.

One of the warmest Pickaway-co board of education fights in recent years was moving underway today with the climax to come in the election on Nov. 7.

The re-election of D. L. Buchanan as superintendent of county schools next August, when his term expires, is apparently at stake.

Seven candidates have filed with three to be elected. Terms of Wayne Hoover, Jackson-twp., C. E. Meyers, Washington-twp., W. H. Barch, Harrison-twp., and all three are seeking re-election but are on different sides of the fence.

Mr. Hoover, president of the board, has lined up with James F. Willis of Atlanta, and A. J. 'Jake' Dunkle of Walnut-twp. Names of all three of these men were in the same petition filed with Harry E. Willis, clerk of the board of elections.

On the other side are Mr. Meyers and Mr. Barch, Wayne Brown of Madison-twp. and W. I. Spangler of Tilton.

Willis and Dunkle are new in the county board contest. Both have had experience in school matters, however, the former having served on several Perry-twp. boards and as clerk the latter was a school teacher and a member of the county board of examiners. Mr. Hoover is a board of education veteran. He was a member of the board which elected Mr. Buchanan and, although he voted for the school man, he did not cast his ballot for the length of the term which he thought was one year longer than it should have been.

Mr. Meyers and Mr. Barch were also members of the board which elected Mr. Buchanan, both voting for the term which he is now serving. Charles C. Heffner was president of the board at that time and joined with Meyers and Barch in the vote.

Walter J. Marion was the fifth member of the board and voted fruitlessly with Mr. Hoover against the length of term in the contest.

Wayne Brown and W. I. Spangler are both well known men. Mr. Brown has been active in his section of the county while Mr. Spangler has been through several political contests.

The board of education fight is non-partisan with politics expected to have nothing whatsoever to do with the result.

CROP SIGN-UP STARTS TODAY

Several Farms Already Under Government Plan; Many Preparing To File.

Sign-up for the government's wheat curtailment plan was underway today in Pickaway-co under the direction of Guy Dowdy, emergency administrator.

Papers of seven farms are on file in the county farm bureau office and hundreds of county farmers are filling out papers in preparation to partake in the plan. Mr. Dowdy and farm bureau officials will assist anyone asking help in filling out the papers.

Those listed today included the M. H. Messer farm in Wayne-twp., owned by Bertha Frederick of Marysville and tenanted by the Rittinger brothers; Cora Rader Hood farm in Pickaway-twp.; Ellis M. Hosler farm, Jackson-twp., tenanted by Dewey Overmire; C. M. Bowman farm, Salter Creek-twp., tenanted by John Drumm; Weaver farm, Washington-twp., tenanted by Bryan Riffe; Dunkle farm, Harrison-twp., owned by Leland and Wright Dunkle and Mabel Bolender and tenanted by A. J. Rinehart, and the John Ucker farm in Walnut-twp.

The last of the educational wheat meetings was held at Walnut-twp. Monday evening with 135 persons present. Seven meetings have been held with an attendance of 1,510 persons. Pickaway-twp. led in attendance with 160 present with Scioto-twp. second with 150. Walnut-twp. was third.

Strikes, Civil War Bring Chaos To Island; Shortage Predicted.

(Copyright 1933 by International News Service.)

HAVANA, Sept. 12.—The dread spectre of famine hovered over Havana again today as strikes and civil strife brought chaos to the island republic's existence.

Spurred by vivid memories of the grave food shortage which preceded the downfall of former President Gerardo Machado, aristocrats and proletarians threw class distinction to the winds and converged on the market places, avidly buying up whatever supplies are available.

"We can only do the best we can," said Mrs. Mario G. Menocal, president's wife. "We can be thankful for having plenty of rice and beans—they will hold us if widespread strikes or civil war occur."

Additional cases of the dread disease brought the total close to the 700 mark. Five deaths occurred in the 24 hours ending at midnight.

In an effort to check the disease Dr. W. T. Harrison, public health service expert, outlined the disease symptoms in a radio broadcast and warned persons to go to a physician immediately if the drowsiness that precedes encephalitis appears.

M. E. MINISTER TO BE NAMED

Successor to Rev. Eichinger To Be Selected at Ohio Conference.

A successor to the late Rev. C. H. Eichinger will be named late this week as pastors from a thousand Ohio Methodist Episcopal church assembly for the Ohio conference in Columbus. The six-day session opens Wednesday morning.

Just who Rev. Eichinger's successor will be has not been determined and probably will not be earlier than Monday morning.

More than 700 pastors from churches in 50 counties that comprise the district will be on hand when the first meeting of the conference opens. The state is divided into two conferences, the southern Ohio group being slightly larger than the northern Ohio.

Selection of two district superintendents, admission to the conference of 22 German Methodist churches in the territory covered by the Ohio conference, and the regular assignment of pastors will comprise principal business.

TWO TO RETURN

Dr. E. K. Johnson, superintendent of the Defiance district, and Dr. C. F. Bowman, Portsmouth district will yield their positions and return to pastorates because of the six-year term limit.

Status of the German churches will be exactly the same as that of any other churches in the conference after their inclusion to the membership lists this week. The conference now has a membership of more than 250,000.

From the early German Methodist system of supplying pastors have arisen the present Methodist circuit pastor plan.

FAVOR LIQUOR, SALES TO AID TAX PROGRAM

Sentiment Hot Over Proposals to Tax Liquor For Schools

SOLONS PUZZLED

Committee of Three Studying Action

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—Ending a 12-day recess, Ohio's "marathon" legislature returned to Columbus today and walked into hotbed of conflicting sentiment over proposals for liquor taxation and a general retail sales tax as a means of raising $8,700,000 for distressed schools throughout the state.

Strong possibility existed that a liquor tax would be included in the fund-raising program, despite the opposition of both Governor George White and the Ohio Anti-Saloon League. It was reported also that proponents of the plan were prepared to stage a fight on the floor of the legislature of a general retail sales tax plan, reviving the bitter controversy that raged during the regular session last spring.

SESSION GOES ON

Meantime, it appeared possible that the legislature, which has been embroiled in seeking a solution to the taxation problem since last January, may have to continue in session until October before it can finally get its job completed.

The taxation problem today was shunted on to the shoulders of a sub-committee of three, appointed by the special joint taxation committee. The liquor tax proposal and the general retail sales tax plan were expected to be considered by the sub-committee, which is comprised of Representative Keith W. Lawrence (D) of Cleveland, and Charles H. Jones (R) of Jackson, and Senator D. J. Gunsett (D) of Van Wert, chairman of the special taxation committee.

Both Lawrence and Jones supported the two percent retail sales tax plan proposed by Governor White at the last regular session of the legislature. Gunsett, however, is known to be a bitter foe of such a plan.

TO TAX WHISKY

Predictions were bantered about by committee members today that a tax of $2 a gallon on prescription whisky will be one of the proposals included in the program to be submitted to the legislature as a whole when it convenes this afternoon.

The predictions were made in the face of stout opposition expressed yesterday by Governor White who expressed the opinion that a high liquor tax would "encourage the continuation of bootlegging."

NESBITT DRIVER FOR McSWEENEY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—Jake Nesbitt, who has served seven years of a life sentence for the murder of his wife in Troy, had a "new job" today.

He has been assigned to the staff of chauffeurs of State Welfare Director John McSweeney, it was learned. Nesbitt, an Ohio State University graduate, has been a clerk at the penitentiary for several years.

He has been accorded the usual privileges given prisoners with the best behavior records.

McSweeney makes frequent trips to the 21 other state penal, correctional, and medical institutions and a staff of drivers is required for the director and his assistants. Frequently, "good behavior" prisoners are given the jobs.

BILLY SUNDAY'S SON IS CLAIMED

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Injuries suffered in a mysterious three-story plunge from his apartment window had proved fatal today to George M. Sunday, 40, son of Evangelist "Billy" Sunday.

Sunday died while under an anesthetic as physicians operated on his fractured jaw.

His mother, Mrs. Hallie Sunday, revealed that she had felt a "strange premonition" of death all day yesterday.

Sunday had insisted the fall was accidental, although his wife first told police he had threatened suicide after a bitter quarrel with her.

THEFTS INVESTIGATED

Sheriff Charles Radcliff received a call early Tuesday morning from the home of Rev. Sam C. Elsea, Columbus-pk.

"Don Rader, who operates the Linceo filling station across the road from us was robbed last night and wants you to come out," a voice reported.

Sheriff Radcliff went to the scene. The proprietor of the Elsea filling station, directly across the road from the Linceo station, came running to the sheriff. "Say, you better come over here, I guess we were robbed too," he said.

An investigation by the sheriff revealed that the thieves entered the Linceo station, owned by Ben Gordon, and stole three large tires, a tan suede jacket, a black slicker and other articles. Entrance was gained by removing a glass from a rear window and opening the window.

A Remington 12-gauge shot gun, a box of live paching 25-pennies and three nickels were stolen from the Elsea station by the same culprits who entered the other building, the sheriff believes.

Crist Brothers store, W. Main-st., reported to police Monday afternoon that someone entered their store sometime between Saturday night and Monday morning, ransacked the safe and stole a tin box containing a number of valuable papers. Entrance was gained through a rear door.

Members of the police and sheriff's departments are investigating the reports.

S. T. RIFE RESIGNS

Charles H. May, president of the board of education, announced Tuesday that S. T. Rife, high school teacher, had resigned his position. The resignation becomes effective immediately.

Mr. Rife has been teaching history, social science, civics and commercial law. He served as a grade teacher before entering the high school.

Miss Reba Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lee, Northridge, was substituting Tuesday afternoon for Mr. Rife. A permanent successor will be named later.

BOHNERT BILL AGAIN BEATEN

Taxation Committee Spurns Measure To Abolish County School Job.

OTHER BILL PASSES

Will Give Money To County Officers.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—The relentless fight to abolish the position of county school superintendent, directed by Rep. Nathan C. Bohnert (D) of Pickaway-co, today was once more doomed to defeat through action taken last night by the legislature's special taxation committee.

Spurning a bill by Bohnert which would allow county school boards to do away with the job, the committee gave its approval to an opposition measure appropriating $86,000 annually as the state's contribution to county superintendents' salaries.

$950 PER COUNTY

The rival bill allows the state to contribute a maximum of $950 per county in compliance with present state law. Senator Daniel J. Gunsett (D) of Van Wert, committee chairman, warned that superintendents would suffer salary decreases unless the measure is passed.

Approval of the opposition bill marks the second rebuff for Bohnert in his campaign against county superintendents.

His own bill, introduced early during the regular session several months ago, was rejected by the house schools committee, and died with expiration of the regular session. Re-introduced during the special session, it bore the name of a co-author, Rep. E. Ray Hummel (D) of Carroll-co. No discussion of the measure was held by the committee last night. The committee voted unanimously to recommend the opposition bill.

CIVIC LEADER, PUMPKIN SHOW HEAD, CLAIMED

Death Comes Quietly at Home; Complications Cause Demise

BITES THURSDAY

Widow, Two Children Survive Able Man

Thomas F. Jeffries, aged 59, civic leader and senior member of Jeffries and Colville, dry goods merchants, died at his home, 209 S. Scioto-st., Tuesday at 2:40 a. m. of complications. Mr. Jeffries' fatal illness was of one month's duration.

He became critical less than one week ago and his demise had been momentarily expected since Sunday. The entire city was shocked by his death which ended a noble fight against an illness which gradually wore away his resistance.

Mr. Jeffries' death removes one of Circleville's most active supporters. He believed in his city ahead of everything except members of a family to whom he was a devoted husband and father.

BEGAN AS CLERK

He began his career as a clerk in the firm of Finkel and Hunsicker and at the time of his death was engaged in business in the same location on S. Court-st. In 1910 the store became the property of Mr. Jeffries and Robert C. Colville who have continued as partners since that time.

The greatest hobby in his life, it can be called that, was his devotion to the Pumpkin Show. He had served as treasurer of the society for many years and was president of the organization over many years. His position in the society will be missed by all.

He was a past president of the Chamber of Commerce and at the time of his death was a director. He served as president of the Circleville Industrial Co., devoted to the interests of the city, and was a member of city council for 16 years declining re-election because of his increasing business activities.

GRADUATE OF O. S. U.

Mr. Jeffries was a devout member of St. Joseph's Catholic church and served on the committees appointed in 1908 to study construction of a new church and residence. He was a graduate of St. Joseph's parochial school and of Ohio State university.

The deceased was a lifelong member of the Democratic party and had served for a number of years as a member of the Pickaway-co executive committee.

FRATERNALLY HE WAS AFFILIATED

With Circleville lodge No. 77 B. P. O. Elks, Modern Woodmen and the Pickaway Country club.

Thomas F. Jeffries was born in Circleville Feb. 20, 1874, a son of J. F. and Harriet Jeffries. He was married to Cecilia Prather, a Lancaster native, on Sept. 2, 1896.

Mrs. Jeffries and two children, Erma, wife of Dr. D. J. Bradley of Cincinnati, and Lawrence, an attorney of Lancaster, survive. Mr. Jeffries is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Ida Fellers, this city, a brother, John C. Columbus, and three grandchildren, Mrs. C. Jean, Thomas David and Barbara Ann Bradley, children of Dr. and Mrs. D. J. Bradley.

SERVICE THURSDAY

Funeral services will be Thursday at 8:30 a. m. at St. Joseph's church with Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

Pallbearers will be T. O. Gilliland, Mayor B. T. Hedges, Durward Dowden, R. G. Colville, S. T. Rife and L. M. Butch.

YOUTHS HANG FOR MURDER OF WOMAN

AMHERST, N. S., Sept. 12.—Convicted of the brutal murder of a life-long friend, two 19-year-old youths were hanged here today.

They were Truman Smith and Alvin Howwood, found guilty of slaying Mrs. Elmer Smith, aged 45, invalid, and robbing her of $100 on Feb. 3 last.

Lee and Petty Tangle Today

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 12.—Although the American Association season is first place and the 15th game advantage, the Columbus Red Birds today had a job on their hands before they could claim the association pennant.

SENATORS AND GIANTS NEARER TO BIG SERIES

Miracle Appears Only Thing Which Can Keep Two Clubs From Pennant.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Only a few final steps today separated the Washington Senators and the New York Giants from the Golden gates of the 1933 World series.

If the Giants take ten of their remaining nineteen games, the second place Chicago Cubs will have a chance all of their remaining seven games to win the National League pennant. Washington only has to get an even break in sixteen remaining games to annex the American league flag, even though the runner-up New York Yankees should win all of the eighteen games still on their schedule.

The Giants downed Cincinnati again yesterday, 3 to 1, and now lead the Cubs by eight full games. Carl Hubbell, ace of the New Yorkers' pitching staff, once more was the rescuing hero. This time it was Herman Bell who was in trouble, so Hubbell hurled the last three innings and humbled Red Lucas, who these many weeks has been in the embarrassing position of a grand pitcher with a poor club. In all the enemy got only six hits off Bell and Hubbell, Carl getting downright stingy by handing out just one.

Beating Cleveland 5 to 1, the Senators moved nine and a half games ahead of the Yankees. Monte Weaver spaced the Indians' eight safeties and Cleveland was unable to score until the ninth. Gehl got three hits and Schulte and Mann each a pair for Washington.

Cubs' plight after 10 years of backache will, at least enable Germans to see what's ahead for Hitler-land.

must meet the Minneapolis. Millers, champions of the western division, in a playoff series.

The winning team will tackle the International League champions in the Little World Series. First game of the series between the Birds and the Millers was scheduled today, with Bill Lee, giant right-handed youth pitching for the Columbus club, and Jess Petty, veteran hurler, getting the assignment for the Millers.

Night games Wednesday and Thursday are on the calendar for the clubs, before the scene changes from Bird stadium here to the Minneapolis ball park where play is to be resumed Saturday.

ANSEL ESTELL WINS OHIO'S VARSITY 'O'

Those broad-shouldered sons of Pickaway-twp are now represented at Ohio State university by a winner of the Varsity O on the Buckeye baseball team.

Three years ago this young man was active on the diamond, track and basketball court at Pickaway High School; now, as a Junior at O. S. U. he has already won two sweaters, a frosh and a Varsity.

We refer to Ansell Estell who has gained Varsity recognition for his pitching, in his Sophomore year of college. Ansell has faced Indiana, Illinois, Ohio Wesleyan, and other good teams during the past season gaining valuable experience.

This summer he is playing with an independent team at Yellowbud with great success, working hard to gain good control.

Swearingen Family Had Important Part In Fort Dearborn Founding

One of the most historic events of the World's Fair at Chicago this year was the centennial anniversary of the election of the first town officers of Chicago and the anniversary of the massacre at Fort Dearborn. Invitations to attend the ceremonies observing these events were sent here but, unfortunately, none of the recipients were able to attend.

The invitations were received by members of the Swearingen family, descendants of James Strode Swearingen, one of Fort Dearborn's founders and early settlers. James S. Swearingen, namesake and eldest grandson of the pioneer, and Grant Swearingen, both of Jackson-twp, H. B., of Boston, and Thomas of Columbus, all were asked to visit the city. The Chicago Historical society and the Junior Association of Commerce of Chicago both urged the descendants to attend the celebration.

John Strode Swearingen was a native of Virginia and at the age of 16 became clerk of Frederick, Va. On account of delicate health he later was advised to seek a change of climate and decided to join a body of pioneers who were seeking homes in Ohio, then a wilderness.

He was successful in exchanging his Virginia properties for land in the Chillicothe vicinity.

In 1800, at the age of 18, he was made an ensign in the army and two years later was named a lieutenant and was considered such a good soldier that he was selected to guide a party to Lake Erie.

When he reached Detroit he was entrusted to the command of a company which hurried to the relief of the settlement at Chicago. There he remained in command during the building of Fort Dearborn.

He returned to Ohio after a while and finally located in Jackson-twp. He succumbed February 3, 1864.

THE ROMANS
had a phrase for it—

"CAVEAT EMPTOR," meaning "Let the buyer beware." This wasn't used as a bit of balm to ease the ancient conscience; nor, yet, was it placarded in the booths and stalls of the market-place. It was a piece of every-day knowledge, born of dear-bought experience.

A shopkeeper knew little about the source of his merchandise. This tunic he bought from a trader, who said it came from Byzantium. So he sold it as the latest Byzantine style. The trader told him the dye was pure Tyrian—it wouldn't fade. So he sold it as Tyrian dyed. But the buyer knew the responsibility was his own. If he guessed wrongly, or his judgment was poor, it was his hard luck.

Today, fortunately, there are safer guides than the blanket-warning to "let your eyes be your market."

These guides are the newspaper advertisements. In this newspaper, they are a daily catalog of the best values in town—signed by responsible firms. If the goods are not all that is claimed for them, their sponsors would need to "beware." For no business can thrive on a one-time sale, or on dissatisfied customers.

A signed advertisement is, in a way, like a promissory note. The advertiser has made a statement, and affixed his signature as a sign of good faith.

So, read the advertisements before you start out on a buying-trip. Make this a daily habit, and see how much you save . . . in time, in temper, in money, in shoe-leather.

COUNTRY TO START OFFENSE ON CRIME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Fifteen years from the day the American army hurled itself against the heavily fortified St. Mohiel salient in one of the decisive engagements of the war, the government today was preparing to attack in a new warfare against organized crime.

"It is a real war which confronts us all—a war that must be successfully fought if life and property are to be secure in our country," Attorney General Cummings declared.

"Organized crime is an open challenge to our civilization, and the manner in which we meet it will be a test of our capacity for self government. This is the kind of a government which our forefathers set up and it is my confident belief that we shall not be recreant to our great heritage."

PRESS IS PRAISED

Cummings praised the press, referring to the Hearst papers among others.

The racketeer exacts a billion dollars a year from legitimate business according to Cummings. He said the corrupting influence of this evil growth spreads in many directions.

Cummings hinted on the organization of some form of national police force. He said the problem involved the development of a system suitable to the American requirements. While there are constitutional limitations he thought the problem might be met without doing violence to the constitution or American traditions.

"The warfare which an armed underworld is waging upon organized society has reached disturbing proportions," Cummings continued. "The prevalence of predatory crime, including kidnapping and racketeering, demands the utmost diligence upon the part of our law enforcing agencies, supported by an informed and aroused public sentiment."

Since the passage of the federal kidnapping law in June, 1932, every kidnapping case handled by the U. S. division of investigation has been solved, Cummings said. Fifteen cases were investigated resulting in 17 convictions, including a death sentence and two life sentences. Thirty persons are in custody awaiting trial.

"Order and tranquillity prevail throughout the republic," the president told International News Service, as the ceremony was concluded.

Thomas F. Jeffries

WHAT a booster for Circleville he was!
 In the death of Thomas F. Jeffries this city lost one of its most ardent workers, one of its most noble supporters and a man admired by all who came in contact with him in his many activities for the good of the community.
 He was the kind of man whose family must share him with the community which he helped so much to build.
 His character had many sides, all of them brilliant. A tireless worker in many and varied lines of activity, there was never anything of the selfish in his makeup. Worldly possessions meant only the means to generous ends.
 A ready man was as highly respected by him as was a man of great means. He was a man among men.
 His political side was predicated upon an intense patriotism and was based upon those principles of Democracy which have the greatest human appeal. From those principles he never wavered, hence his time partisanship.
 "Tom" Jeffries' life was dedicated to Circleville and its good. He was a bulwark in the Chamber of Commerce and guided it with a firm and energetic hand for a number of years; his activities in his political party and his church were untiring, and his place in the Circleville Pumpkin Show society, where he had served from its birth till the difficult task.
 He was one of the fine type of American men whose personality is a real asset to American ideals.
 The death of Thomas F. Jeffries is indeed a severe blow to the community.

At least railroads will not break at the end of 1933 how few passengers were killed in wrecks.

Butler Urges Changes

HOW to improve the functioning of the federal government is a question which in recent years has claimed attention inside and outside of congress, but without any effective steps in this direction being taken.
 One of the most fruitful sources of trouble has been friction between the executive and the legislative branches. This has served to delay if not defeat important legislation outside of matters directly involved in the dispute and to inject into legislative attempts prejudices, and other factors that could not make for calm and impassioned consideration of subjects.
 Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, a careful student of government, has been giving some thought to the problem of effecting changes which would make for more smooth operation of the machinery of government, not only with respect to the relations between the executive and the legislative branches but in other particulars regarded as equally important. Four recommendations are made by him. In substance, they are:

1. Requirement by statute that congressional amendments be submitted for ratification to state conventions, the members of which shall be elected at large "and to be chosen and to convene within a time designated by the statute following the submission of an amendment."
2. "Establishment by the president of a council of foreign relations" to aid in negotiating treaties and in conducting international conferences and assemblies. The council would include "perhaps, the secretary of state and two other persons selected by the president, three senators to be chosen by the senate and three representatives to be appointed by the house."
3. Bringing the executive and legislative branches into more harmonious cooperation by "providing that the principal officer of each executive department may occupy a seat on the floor of the senate and house" for explaining administration measures on which congress might desire more light.
4. "Abolition of the direct primary and nomination of candidates by convention."

All four of the recommendations cover points which have at times been brought into prominence by specific occurrences that emphasized the importance of their relation to public welfare. Creation of the proposed council of foreign relations, Dr. Butler said, would not affect the present power of the senate in ratifying treaties, "but surely there is every likelihood that power would then be exercised with more concern for the public welfare and for the highest interests of the American people than has been the case during the last quarter century." This, he

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Joan Hastings and her sweetheart, Bill Martin, are separated when her stern aunt, Evvie Van Fleet, learns of the romance and sends Joan away to school without seeing Bill. Enroute from her home in Sausalito, California to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Joan is snatched by a train and taken to Bill's home only to learn that he had left town. Unable to return to her aunt's home, Joan goes to San Francisco. She lives with good-natured Mrs. Maisie Kimmer, whose daughter, Francine, gives Joan a position modeling in her exclusive Maison Francine. Wealthy Curtis Barstow falls in love with Joan but her heart is still with Bill though she believes he no longer cares. Lyla Barstow disapproves of her son's interest in Joan. Bill is befriended by Rollo Keyes, wealthy playboy whose father gives Bill a position. He learns surveying and is well on the road to success. Unable to stay away any longer, Bill returns home to try and find Joan. He learns Joan's whereabouts and waits outside Francine's shop for her. Joan turns white at the sight of him, but holds herself aloof. Hurt at her attitude, Bill apologizes for upsetting her and leaves. Ruth Gillespie, a model, asks Joan to make a foursome with Rollo Keyes, Ruth's fiancé, and his friend. Ruth confides in Joan that she is really in love with Rollo's friend, who turns out to be Bill. Joan is hurt to think that Bill can care for Ruth so soon after loving her and is indifferent towards him. Months pass and Joan is just becoming accustomed to seeing Bill with Ruth, when Bill comes back.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIX

The door bell rang. Maisie, of course, she'd forgotten her gloves! What a shame to have to come all the way back, with those terrible high heels, and her feet hurting so...

But it wasn't Maisie. It was Bill. Bill with the dear, dark head, the blue eyes, and the little tuft of black hair over his nose, that would keep him from ever quite growing up. Bill to whom she had given her heart and her tears. Bill, come back like a ghost, to haunt her, to torture her, and then slip silently away again, leaving her to forget...

They hovered in the doorway, tall awkward Bill, and Joan still with Maisie's kitchen apron tied round her neck, and the white gloves in her hand.

"Come in," she said. Untied the apron, set the gloves on a table, carefully, as if they were made of glass, and would break.

Joan leaned against the table watching him, cold and motionless as a lump of ice.

"I don't know where to begin," he burst out at last. "Joan, I had to see you. I couldn't go on this way..." He broke off and pointed to the closed door to Maisie's room. "Is there anyone there?"

She shook her head. "No. No one."

"Joan, you're making it so hard for me!"

"You're not making things easy for me, coming here," she said, faintly reassured by his nervousness. A feeling of resentment grew in her, resentment against this Bill who could still tear her heart, still make her care that she seemed unhappy.

"But I had to come!" he cried savagely. "I had to see you... I told you... Oh, Johnnie, to think that you came back, and I never knew. Writing letters too, and not getting one of them! Her hands behind her, to keep from reaching them out to him, to keep from crying."

"Then you did care—you did!"

What was he saying? She held tight to the table. "I felt like a dog when I heard, Joan. I would have married you, Joan. I will yet, if you'll have me. I should have been shot... I must have been crazy—crazy!"

So that was why he had come. Conscience. Remorse. Wanting to make amends now... even... even to marrying her, if she wanted him to.

Her flesh crawled. Why must she listen? Why didn't she tell him to go? "Please," she said quite steadily, "Please don't. I never think about it. It's so far behind us. It's—it's absurd you're coming here now!"

"Absurd! Joan, you're putting me off again. You're not giving me a chance to talk. Every time I've seen you, you've done just the same thing—high-hatted me—changed the subject—"

"Then can't you see it's distasteful to me—can't you see I don't want to talk to you?"

"No—Joan, it was all a mistake, all a miserable mistake, and I won't let it make it right, or as right as I can. I'm going to make you listen."

She laughed shakily. "Even if I don't want to. Even if I'd rather not look at you—"

And a year ago—less than a year ago, you promised—look at me, Joan—you promised—"

The last of her self-control was slipping. He held her two hands

Her eyes were closed, her lips tragically pressed together. Her breath came in rasping sobs. With the little strength that was left in her she kept her face averted, pushed him away with her clenched hands.

His mind whirled in dark circles. dark circles of deep water, whirlpools sucking him in to despair.

"I've lost her now... I've gone at it the wrong way... frightened her... Joan, come back! Come back to talk to me—"

He did not hear Maisie's key turn in the lock, but Joan did. "Let me go!" she whimpered, frozen with terror and shame.

Her eyes were fixed on the door, waiting, waiting for Maisie to come in, find them—

Maisie's china blue eyes were round with terror. She stood teetering in the doorway.

Maisie's china blue eyes were round with terror. She stood teetering in the doorway.

in his now, in another moment he would force her to meet his eyes and see... and see... "And don't you know what a year can bring?" she cried desperately. "I notice it brought plenty to you. Well, it has to me too. I haven't spent it weeping for you. There's someone else now—"

"Barstow—"

"Never mind who—" "You don't care for him!"

He had her in his arms now, was forcing her face back so that he could look into her eyes. "Johnnie, you can't—you're lying to me. I don't know why, but you are. You can't mean it. You're mine—mine—mine—"

"Let me go," she whispered thickly. "I'll never let you go!" he cried desperately, because he thought he had lost her forever. Joan the only girl he had ever loved, the only girl he would ever love...

"You belong to me, Joan. You can't undo that, you're mine—always. Nobody else."

"Let me go—let me go!" She was sobbing now, beating her clenched hands ineffectually against his chest—"Please—"

But Bill was beyond reason now, beyond appeal. He only knew that Joan was slipping away, slipping away and he must not let her go.

He held her tighter and tighter in his arms. "You're mine," he whispered incoherently. "You can't drop me for somebody else... you can't. Joan, let me talk to you, don't turn your head away... see Joan—"

Bill's grasp, ran, wildly weeping and flung herself in Maisie's arms. "Maisie! Tears blinded her. Green hiccupping sobs strangled her, shook her so that she could hardly stand."

When she opened her swollen eyes and looked into the kind pink face so close to hers the room was very quiet. Bill was gone. She knew that he would never come back.

"I told you to keep away from that Gillespie girl and her rough-neck friends. The low down thing—the miserable—"

Joan began to laugh, hysterical, sobbing laughter that racked and tore at her throat. "It's so funny, your talking about Ruth now, because it's true—he's her friend. But he wasn't always. He—he's the one I knew, Maisie—the one I loved—"

She laughed again, peal after peal of helpless, mirthless laughter. "It's so funny!—Your guessing it... Ruth, you know—"

And then she was crying again, gaspingly, brokenly. "I can't bear it—I can't—I can't—"

"There, there," Maisie crooned, "there, there." She sank into the rocking chair, drew the weeping girl into her lap.

"There, there, don't cry, dear—don't cry—" Her mind went leaping back over the girl's scrappy history, the little confidences, the few words of that one she had loved—Bill.

When Joan looked up at her again through her tears she saw that Maisie was crying too.

"Poor child," Maisie murmured brokenly. "Poor child—"

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND
 All beautiful women can be divided into two groups, like houses, furnished and unfurnished, according to Busby Berkeley, director and dance impresario and the originator of the famous chorus seen in "Gold Diggers of 1933." Warner Bros. super musical picture now at the Grand Theatre.

What Berkeley means by "unfurnished" is brains. "Unfurnished" girls are mere prettiness without the high order of intelligence which makes for personality, behind it. Some of the "prettiest" girls he finds in his perennial search for beauty, are discarded on the first test Berkeley sets to them as "unfurnished." He wants the other kind for his ensembles.

AT THE CLIFTON
 "Disgraced" the story of a woman's fight for love with honor, comes Wednesday and Thursday at the Clifton Theatre. Helen Twelvetrees, wistful blonde star, is cast in the leading role, with Bruce Cabot, Adrienne Ames, William Harrigan and Ken Murray heading the supporting cast.

"Disgraced" is daringly modern in its theme. Miss Twelvetrees, as an attractive model, fascinates Cabot, a wealthy manufacturer, town, his ardent wooing

Price Rise in Sweden

STOCKHOLM—Wholesale prices in Sweden continued to rise in July, as desired by the financial authorities. The average index number for July was 108 as compared with 106 in June and 105 in April. Only the prices on fuel and lubricating oils continued to fall. Lumber and chemicals were the highest, with 137 and 133 respectively.

Crocodile Tricky With Tail
 A crocodile's limbs and claws are not strong enough to do a great deal of aggressive mischief, but one swift, unexpected side-stroke of its long, muscular tail is sufficient to sweep a smaller animal into the water and deal a dangerous blow to a man.

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

The Ashville high school football team lost no time in getting ready for their first game, and held their first practice on Monday afternoon, Sept. 4. The initial practice found 24 men ready for work, however most of these were new and inexperienced. There are seven letter men back this year, around which the team will have to be built. The letter men back are: C. Baker, fullback; Scoles, quarterback; Morrison, tackle; Williams, guard; McCone, guard; Ward, halfback, and Young, end. The addition of Warren (senior)

and Henry (sophomore) Steinbrook should help the team a great deal especially since Warren has had a year of experience at Greenfield high school last year. Ashville plays its first game at Bremen on Sept. 15, at 3:30 p. m.

The sixth grade organized a history club to discuss news of the present day for the coming school year. William Martin was elected president and Dorothy Hinkle secretary. The World's Fair at Chicago seems to be the present topic of most interest.

The sixth grade had 100 per cent attendance during the first week of the school year. Twelve girls and sixteen boys have registered.

Kathryn Bowers, Roberta Cromley, and Edgar Hedges will represent the eighth grade in the grade orchestra this year.

The first meeting of the Mercantile Literary Society was held Friday afternoon. Mrs. Cooper was again selected as critic. The following new officers were elected: President, Georgia Bowers; vice president, Frank Williams; sec-

tary, Maxine Canter; program committee, Charlotte Rhodes, Dick Morrison, Francine Runkle.

Warren Steinbrook is a new member in the senior class.

Miss Virginia Yeager of Pittsburgh, Pa., visited Ashville high school, Thursday, with Maxine Canter.

Our enrollment in the Ashville schools to date is as follows:

Grade one, 40; two, 26; three, 28; four, 31; five, 30; six, 26; seven, 24; eight, 28; nine, 37; ten, 30; eleven, 37; twelve, 27. There are at least half a dozen grade children and eight or ten high school pupils who are either out because of sickness, poverty or to work at the present time.

Our P. T. A. officers for this school year are: Mrs. Leroy Cromley, president; Mrs. C. A. Highley, vice president; Mrs. Frank Morrison, secretary; and Mrs. Clyde Brinker, treasurer. The first meeting of the year will be held on Sept. 21.

Eight local teachers have declared their intention of staying for the luncheon to be given at the Washington school after the teachers meeting next Saturday.

There are 30 pupils enrolled in grade four. Jimmie Plum is a transfer student from the Bexley Elementary school. The fourth grade is studying important facts about Ohio in geography class; in language classes they are writing stories about their pets for their pet book.

The following students are enrolled in the seventh grade: Inez Armentrout, Mary June Barten, Jean Brinker, Mary Margaret Carley, Lucille Chamberlain, Robert Courtright, Billy Gerhardt, Josephine Good, Janavce Harris, Ethel Hiles, Leroy Hoover, Helen Kibbee, Aaron Maupin, Helen Miller, Mari-belle Miller, James Neece, Kenneth Rathburn, Edwin Raver, Isabel Scoles, Virgie Lee Six, Dorothy Spangler, Esther Spangler, Bernard Walden, and Andrew Ward.

Francine Runkle will furnish a vocal solo and Richard Welsh a trumpet solo at the first county teachers meeting to be held at Washington Sept. 16.

The enrollment in the first grade this year is 39. There are 27 boys and 12 girls.

The fifth grade has an enrollment of 31 pupils. The following are members of the class: Betty Brinker, Doris Clure, John Chamberlain, Billy Cloud, Donna Courtright, George Forquer, Mary Louise Gerhardt, Helen Elmore, Chester Arthur, Margaret Glick, Ruth Gloyd, Marie Crambit, Betty Harris, Robert Hoover, Edna Hundt, Beatrice Kibbee, Ray Kraft, Ruth Miller, Elmina Morrison, Harold Myers, Mary Rathburn, Clarence Rush, Ruth Ann Sark, Billy Scoles, Esther Smith, June Snyder, Willis Short, Jane Stevenson, Mary Swank, Lola Dell Ward and Lewis White.

The fifth grade girls organized a Girls Club electing the following officers: President, Jane Stevenson; vice president, Betty Brinker; secretary, Donna Courtright; treasurer, Margaret Glick.

Public Works Board. They got no satisfaction from either.

The next thrust was of a public character. It was what caused Henry I. Harriman, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, to issue a blast denouncing NRA "discrimination" against the open shop.

Harriman's declaration of war was significant. It gave public notice of the organized employers' intention to resist unionized labor. It also brought into the open an ominous rift within the NRA.

Harriman is a member of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board. For some weeks the big business membership of this body has been increasingly irritated over Johnson's labor policy. Finally when the Labor Advisory Board issued a sharp criticism of the labor clause in the automobile code, the employers blew up.

They held a secret meeting and drafted a counter blast. General Johnson, however, heard of it and sprang into action. He summoned Walter C. Teagle and Gerald Swope, chairman and senior member of the Board. In the interest of peace he urged them to shelve the statement. They did.

But other members of the Board insisted that some public reply be made to the Labor group. The problem was finally settled by having Harriman, as head of the Chamber of Commerce, issue a declaration.

But the fight has just started. It will be the chief feature of NRA for many weeks.

Cuban Merry-Go-Round

When President Roosevelt received the four Latin American diplomats to explain the Cuban situation, he looked around the room and said: "Where is the Minister of Uruguay?"

J. Varela, the gentleman in question, was not there.

He had been invited, but never received the invitation.

Now he is the most disappointed man in Washington.

The Cuban crisis has brought F. D. R.'s Latin American policy to a crossroad. In six months he had won more good will than other presidents in six years.

Reciprocity treaties, withdrawal of marines from Haiti, the common American front at London, all gave him a big build-up below the Rio Grande.

Now he risks losing all in a few days.

It all depends on the final outcome in Cuba.

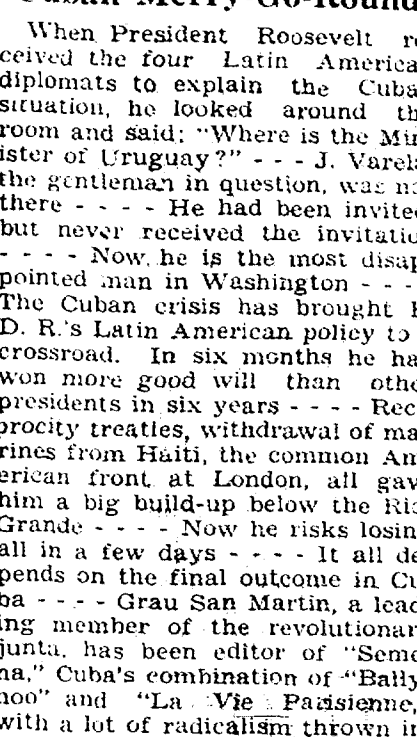

— Grau San Martin, a leading member of the revolutionary junta, has been editor of "Seme-na," Cuba's combination of "Ballyhoo" and "La Vie Parisienne," with a lot of radicalism thrown in.

In explaining the Cuban situation to the ABC Mexican diplomats, Roosevelt put a lot of blame on New York bankers. They were the ones who kept Machado in power, he said, and all of Cuba—plus the United States—is now paying for the consequences.

The bankers, he said, will have to scale down their debts or lose everything.

Three Found in Lake

CHICAGO, Sept. 12—Bodies of two men and a girl who disappeared last Wednesday on an attempted autogyro flight from South Bend, Ind., to Chicago had been recovered today from Lake Michigan.

Friends identified the three bodies as those of Miss Majen-

ta Gerard, 22, of River Forest, Ill.; H. W. (Spud) Manning of Chico, Cal., world's champion parachute jumper; and Charles T. Otto of Haverford, Pa., pilot of the autogyro.

All three bodies were washed ashore near Indiana Harbor, Ind., late yesterday. No trace of the plane was found.

establishment of the first psychological clinic by Stanley Hall of Johns Hopkins in 1883.

Discussing the theories of the propounders of the five modern schools of thought: Animism, Structuralism, Configuration, Behaviorism, and Freudism.

The modern purpose of psychologists is to solve all problems of human welfare through a study of the interrelation of the mental, physical and spiritual make-up of man.

Following these two excellent studies, Miss Florence Hoffman assisted by Mrs. Lawrence Johnson gave the members of the club an intelligence test. No public report is available on the results.

Gus and David Leist, who reside with their grandmother, Mrs. Charles Gusman, S. Scioto-st., have returned from a few weeks' visit at St. Mary's O.

Mrs. Carl Ritz, chairman of the psychology division of the club in charge of the program of the evening, introduced the speakers, Mrs. W. T. Uim and Mrs. Loren Lutz.

Mrs. Uim, whose subject was "These Minds of Ours" told of the four layers of mind, the animal mind, the savage mind, the child mind and the civilized mind. The chief distinction between animal and man being not speech but the fact that man learns from man. Tradition is a habit of thought organized systems of thought and complexes. The most intelligent man is the one who can escape from habit and form his own conclusions. Our most successful scientists have been crucified on the cross of tradition. Genius is nine-tenths per cent hard work. If a child is taught reasoning the foundation for his success has been laid. Hence our best teachers should be given the first grades at school. We live in direct proportion to our interest in life.

The Greeks were wiser than they knew when they stood for 'A sound mind in a sound body.' Life insurance statistics have proven that educated people have a lower mortality rate than the average American man. The real test of sanity is our ability to get on with our fellowman with the least friction.

Mrs. Loren Lutz followed Mrs. Uim with a paper on "Psychology in Retrospect and in Prospect." She traced the beginnings of study or psychology from the time of Adam and Eve who first practiced it, through the Greek philosophers, the Germans, the French to the

VOL. 4. NO. 37. Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, September 12, 1933

Just a week ago today, a party from away up at Pataskala dropped in and inquired about the genuine Estate Heatrola. These people had been visiting at a home in Amanda, where we had installed a Heatrola some seven years ago. Our users are so well pleased with the results from their Heatrola that the visitors wanted to see them and to get prices. Boy, oh boy, but such instances make us feel good! Our Amanda customer—with one in their home and another one in their grocery—boosted the Heatrola so highly that their friends want one. Truly, our customers sell more Heatrolas for us than we sell.

And speaking of Heatrolas, the family of Mr. M., out east of Roundtown, will find a very comfortable winter, even to the little "feller" that plays upon the floor. We installed a Heatrola in their home just a few days ago, the first one for this fall. With a scarcity of Heatrolas in sight, and with prospects of higher prices, our advice to the readers of RTT is that if you are thinking of buying a new Heatrola this fall, GET BUSY NOW.

The lady to whom we recently delivered that lovely Estate gas range came in Friday and told us how well pleased she was with her purchase. She says that she is baking and does not have to turn her baking to keep the edges of her pies and cakes from burning before the center is done. We are pleased to know that we have another satisfied member of the Estate Fresh-Air Club. Who's next?

The lady mentioned above also informed us that she had a SLUMBERON inner-spring mattress on her bed and that if she couldn't get another like it, she must like take $100.00 for it. She must like her mattress, for the price is only $31.75. Just think of the many hours of restful sleep that may be had on such a wonderful mattress for so little money! Better look after your bedding and see if it is as comfortable as you would like.

Did you see that spiffy two-piece living room suite in tapestry that we are showing in our east window? We think that it is a dandy for only $71.25. There's another one back in the store that is a wonder for just a little more money—$83.50. Either suite would add grace to any home in this community. And comfort! Say, you should sit upon them.

A lady, who lives out near Stoutsville, has been wanting a kitchen cabinet for years. Realizing that the prices are now at rock-bottom, came in and purchased one of the latest models of the SELLERS line. With this fine piece of kitchen furniture in her home, she'll save thousands of steps each year. And the cabinet will add beauty and charm to her kitchen too. It's a real work-bench.
